“ What is the future for festivals in Australia ”

Arts Nexus hosts a series of creative conversations exploring themes that impact on arts, culture and creative industries. Curated to reveal our Cultural Leaders, their backgrounds, experiences and ultimately to inspire us in our own creative journeys.

This event provides us the opportunity to hear about Judith's extensive experience in the performing arts, events and education areas working as an educator, director, executive coach and company director.

Judith will share insights on what the creative practice of festivals is and the place events have in our community. We will discuss current issues that affect the festival sector and what we want for the future of festivals and events in Australia. Consider what role the creative community play in the production of these events and the content we provide to animate the civic gatherings.

BIOGRAPHY

Professor Judith McLean is the Chair of the Events Committee for Tourism and Events Qld, the Chair for Arts Education (QUT/QPAC) and Scholar-in-Residence (QPAC), a joint appointment between QPAC and QUT's Creative Industries Faculty.

Responsible for leading the development and execution of the educational strategy and engagement presented at QPAC, building a broader education framework around QPAC's program of presentations and activities, including Out of the Box (OOTB), Judith also facilitates executive development workshops across corporate, government and non-government sectors.

Professor Judith McLean will be visiting Cairns with the Australia Council Arts Leaders Program as their Lead Facilitator.
